DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 14 August 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 6, 7 13 and 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lemelson 5,845,646.

Lemelson discloses a system comprising: a catheter having a catheter body having a proximal end and a distal end terminating in distal tip, wherein the catheter body and the is capable of being mechanically pushed to advance the distal tip; an energy source coupled to said distal tip (Col. 14 ll. 12-25); a magnetically active element located proximate said distal tip of said catheter body; and a magnet outside the body that applies a magnetic field to orient the distal tip of the catheter such that the catheter advances in a direction determined by the magnetic orientation of the distal end of the sheath (Col. 13 l. 60- Col. 14 l. 11).

However, Lemelson does not disclose a sheath, having a sheath body, said sheath body having a proximal end and having a distal end; a lumen extending through said sheath body from said proximal end to said distal end.

The Examiner takes official notice that it is notoriously old and well known in the art to provide a sheath having a proximal and distal ends over a catheter.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the device of Lemelson by providing a sheath over the catheter of Lemelson in order to facilitate easier mobility of the catheter through the vasculature.

Regarding claims 13 and 17-19: Lemelson further discloses utilizing ultrasonic imaging (Col. 1 ll. 7-29), laser imaging (Col. 14 ll. 18-20), and a fluid directing element (Col. 14 ll. 20-25).

4. Claims 8-12, 14-16, 29 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lemelson in view of substitution of known equivalents.

Lemelson discloses the invention essentially as claimed as discussed in claim 6 above. Lemelson further discloses using eddy currents of the magnetic field to heat a magnetic element (Col. 14 ll. 33-38).

However, Lemelson does not disclose using radio frequency, laser energy applied to a thermally conductive element, or resistance heating elements for heating.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the device of Lemelson by substituting the magnetically driven heating for optical laser energy or resistance heating elements and electrical energy since it has been held that the selection of a known component is obvious when it does not produce a new or unexpected result; In re Leshin, 227 F.2d 197, 125 USPQ 416 (CCPA 1960).

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6-19 and 29-30 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
